

LEG

2. An act of obedience.
At court, he that cannot make a leg, put off his cap, kifs his hand, and fay nothing, has neither leg, hands, lip, nor cap. Shakeſp. All's well that ends well.
Their horſes never give a blow,
But when they make a leg, and bow. Hudibras, p. iii.
If the boy ſhould not put off his hat, nor make legs very gracefully, a dancing-maſter will cure that defect. Locke.
He made his leg, and went away. Swift.
3. To ſtand on his own legs; to ſupport himſelf.
Perſons of their fortune and quality could well have ſtood upon their own legs, and needed not to lay in for countenance and ſupport. Collier of Friendship.
4. That by which any thing is ſupported on the ground: as, the leg of a table.
LEGACY, n. f. [legatum, Latin.]
Legacy is a particular thing given by laſt will and teſtament.
If there be no ſuch thing apparent upon record, they do as if one ſhould demand a legacy by force and virtue of ſome written teſtament, wherein there being no ſuch thing ſpecified, he pleadeth that there it muſt needs be, and bringeth arguments from the love or good-will which always the teſtator bore him; imagining, that theſe, or the like proofs, will convict a teſtament to have that in it, which other men can no-where by reading find. Hooker, b. iii.
Go you to Cæſar's houſe;
Fetch the will hither, and we ſhall determine
How to cut off ſome charge in legacies. Shakeſp. J. Cæſar.
Good counſel is the beſt legacy a father can leave a child.
L'Eſtrange's Fables.
When he thought you gone
T' augment the number of the bleſſ'd above,
He deem'd 'em legacies of royal love;
Nor arm'd, his brothers portions to invade,
But to defend the preſent you had made. Dryden.
When the heir of this vaſt treasure knew,
How large a legacy was left to you,
He wiſely ty'd it to the crown again. Dryden.
Leave to thy children tumult, ſtrife, and war,
Portions of toil, and legacies of care. Prior.
- LEGAL, adj. [legal, French; leges, Latin.]
1. Done or conceived according to law.
Whatever was before, was before time of memory; and what is ſince is, in a legal ſenſe, within the time of memory. Hale's Hiſt. of the Common Law of England.
2. Lawful; not contrary to law.
His merits
To ſave them, not their own, though legal, works. Milt.

1. A deputy; an ambaffador.
The legates from th' Ætolian prince return:
Sad news they bring, that after all the coſt,
And care employ'd, their embaffy is loſt. Dryden. Æneis.
2. A kind of ſpiritual ambaffador from the pope; a commiſſioner deputed by the pope for eccleſiaſtical affairs.
Look where the holy legate comes apace,
To give us warrant from the hand of heav'n. Shakeſp.
Upon the legate's ſummons, he ſubmitted himſelf to an examination, and appeared before him. Atterbury.
- LEGATEE, n. f. [from legatum, Lat.] One who has a legacy left him.
If he chance to ſcape this diſmal bout,
The former legatees are blotted out. Dryden's Juvenal.

Betwixt pretenders to a fair eſtate,
Bequeath'd by ſome legator's laſt intent. Dryden.
- LEGEND, n. f. [legenda, Latin.]
1. A chronicle or regiſter of the lives of ſaints.
Legends being grown in a manner to be nothing elſe but heaps of frivolous and ſcandalous vanities, they have been even with disdain thrown out, the very neſts which bred them abhorring them. Hooker, b. v.
There are in Rome two ſets of antiquities, the chriſtian and the heathen; the former, though of a freſher date, are ſo embroiled with fable and legend, that one receives but little ſatisfaction. Addiſon's Remarks on Italy.
2. Any memorial or relation.
And in this legend all that glorious deed
Read, whiſt you arm you; arm you whiſt you read. Fairfax, b. i.
3. An incredible unauthentic narrative.
Who can ſhow the legends, that record
More idle tales, or fables ſo abſurd. Blackmore.
It is the way and means of attaining to heaven, that makes profane ſcorners ſo willingly let go the expectation of it. It is not the articles of the creed, but the duty to God and their neighbour, that is ſuch an inconſiſtent incredible legend. Bentley's Sermons.
4. Any inſcription; particularly on medals or coins.
Compare the beauty and comprehenſiveſs of legends on ancient coins. Addiſon on Medals.
